

Yesterday in Kadriorg, President Toomas Hendrik Ilves received credentials from Céline M. Yodalt, the Ambassador of Burkina Faso, who is that country's first ambassador to be accredited to Estonia.

At the meeting that followed the presentation of credentials, President Ilves said that Estonia, which only 16 years ago freed itself from foreign rule, has gathered experiences in the implementation of its successful reforms that it gladly shares with others.

The Ambassador of Burkina Faso resides in Copenhagen.
