

The Estonian Head of State, Toomas Hendrik Ilves, who arrived in Poland for a state visit, brought a present to the President of Poland, Bronislaw Komorowski: a facsimile of the university records of his great-great grandfather, Piotr, and his brothers and nephew who all studied in the University of Tartu. The original documents were obtained from the National Archives of Estonia.

The facsimiles of the records are completed in colour print in an attempt to replicate them as close to the original as possible using folio format (29.5 x 42 cm, which is the format of the original records). Sewing – as in the case of the originals – was used to bind the facsimile records. All the records were placed in an authentic archive box. In total, the records include 240 pages.
